DUT DESIGN PACKAGING SECTION AT

Graphic Design students in the Visual Communication Department of the Durban University of Technology returned with the overall Graphic Design award for her project that won the Sappi Gold Trophy and Best in Project Awards at IPSA's Student Gold Pack Competition held in 2013 in Johannesburg. Tanya Shunmugam, a third-year Graphic Design student, secured R8 000 worth of prizes for best project in the Graphic Design Wine category and the gold medal as overall winner of the graphic design section within this competition. She also won the overall International WorldStar Student Award. Only 3 of these awards are presented and this is the top possible award to receive in the WorldStar Student Competition.

More than 800 entries for this year's Gold pack event were received. Not only did the DUT Graphic Design programme walk away with the overall prize, Nomonde Mbhele, a third-year Graphic Design student, also won the Judges merit award for the best written report, and Lara Upton, another third-year Graphic Design student, was chosen as a finalist in this competition. Both students also won WorldStar Certificate of Recognition Awards. This is a huge honour considering the number of entries.

The IPSA (Institute of Packaging South Africa) Student Goldpack Awards is a national packaging competition that is presented annually. Each year the assignments and the requirements are presented to the students and are carefully crafted by packaging experts to challenge the students to produce thought-provoking and fresh concepts. Experts in the graphic design and packaging industry adjudicate the student entries. The World Packaging Organisation's (WPO) WorldStar Student Awards is an international packaging design competition for students from countries around the world to develop projects in the field of packaging design.
